

2016 FCS Playoff Teams - Notes

#	Note
1	These teams were rated relative to each other for offense pass/run and defense pass/run team point allocations
2	No Strength of Schedule adjustments were made when rating the teams
3	On the team sheets only one pass/run rating was generated for each defensive box (A - K)
4	On the team sheets only one pass/run rating was generated for each offensive line position (TA - TB)
5	If an injury occurs to any defense or offensive line starter, the reserve uses the same pass/run rating as the starter
6	On the team sheets each skilled player is given their own rating
7	After each of the skill players, you will find a value in parenthesis indicating the number of receptions or rushes they average per game. This can be used in lieu of the asterisk usage symbol. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Receivers note the number of catches.</li> <li>- QA note the number of runs.</li> <li>- Rushers have a split rating, indicating the number of receptions / number of runs</li> </ul>
8	Many teams use a one-back, three-receiver, one tight-end set. For these teams, the Tight end is in the FB box.
9	Some teams are exceedingly run-heavy, and use a wingback as a third running back. For those teams, the EB position contains the wingback and the EA and EC boxes contain the two receivers.
10	On the team sheet in the PK section, the number under the XP rating is the highest roll for GOOD. Please remember the 46, 55, and 64 roles go to the UNUSUAL RESULTS chart.
11	All defenses are rated as either a 4-3 or 3-4 defense.
12	Finder charts are included for each team
13	The total points allocated for defense pass/run and offense pass/run are provided in that section of the team sheet (i.e. DEFENSE 12 / 12.5 or OFFENSE 6.5 / 8)
14	The unused defense box contains the team's record, conference, and tournament seed.
15	In the center of the team sheet above the school name, you will find a pair of numbers like 20/35. This is the ratio of completed passes / rush attempts per game for that team.
16	No references to nicknames, logos, or helmets are included - just in case...
17	Play timings - in college football, the clock stops temporarily after first downs to set the chains. I have found that allocating 40 seconds for inbounds plays (run or completed pass) and 15 seconds for any inbounds play resulting in a 1st down provides a pretty good timing mechanism.
18	If you have any questions or would like additional information, please feel free to email me at mzigler@gmail.com . Enjoy!
