

1900 National League Season

The 1900 National League season was a unique point in major league history as it was the only season that came after a planned contraction in size going from 12 teams to 8 with the elimination of syndicate baseball (an owner owning multiple teams that produced the terrible 20-134 Cleveland Spiders). As a result there was a high concentration of quality players and as a result a higher quality of play not seen for another 20 years with the creation of the American League in 1901 diluting the talent.

National League	W	L	Pct.	GB	Home	Road
Brooklyn Superbas	82	54	0.603	—	43–26	39–28
Pittsburgh Pirates	79	60	0.568	4½	42–28	37–32
Philadelphia Phillies	75	63	0.543	8	45–23	30–40
Boston Beaneaters	66	72	0.478	17	42–29	24–43
St. Louis Cardinals	65	75	0.464	19	40–31	25–44
Chicago Orphans	65	75	0.464	19	45–30	20–45
Cincinnati Reds	62	77	0.446	21½	27–34	35–43
New York Giants	60	78	0.435	23	38–31	22–47

Some of the Hall of Fame players who were part of this season:

Cy Young

Nap Lajoie

Honus Wagner

John McGraw

Christie Mathewson (as a 19 year old rookie with a less than stellar season)

Elmer Flick

Ed Delahanty

Jesse Burkett

Willie Keeler

Roster sizes: The NL had an in-season roster size of 15 so roster flexibility was minimal and pitchers pitched long and often

This was the dead ball era so small ball was the key and power hitting was very limited as the league leader had 12.

The gloves used were little more than lightly padded gloves so errors were quite common, (hence the very low fielding ratings)
