

1933 NEGRO LEAGUES for HISTORY★MAKER BASEBALL

1933 was a very important year in Negro League Baseball history. After years with no real organized league, Gus Greenlee undertook to create the Negro National League. It was not without some problems. The Indianapolis A.B.C.s moved to Detroit due to low attendance. Cole's American Giants could not secure a home field in Chicago, and then moved to Indianapolis. The Homestead Grays were expelled at midseason, charged with raiding other teams for players. The Columbus Blue Birds, in trouble from the outset, tried to move to Cleveland and Akron, both with no success, and did not finish the league. The Cuban Stars were admitted for the second half of the season, but did not play a single game. In the end, the American Giants finished with the best record of the clubs that completed the campaign, but the Pittsburgh Crawfords (owned by NNL President Greenlee) were declared champions.

Some well-organized Negro "major league" teams did not attempt to play in the league, preferring to stay independent; they are included in the set. In addition – perhaps for the first time in any baseball board game – the House of David is included. Known for their full beards, organized by a religious sect based in Benton Harbor, Mich., teams from the House of David spent the summer barnstorming, playing nearly 200 games each year, some against white Major League teams as well as Negro League teams.

ROSTERS: Negro National League rules limited teams to 14 players. As a result, many pitchers were known for playing in the field, and vice versa. There is no record as to how roster sizes were administered.

A number of players spent the season playing for two or three teams. Additional cards indicating their later teams are included; the set is created as of the start of the 1933 season. All statistics are based on the 1933 season.

BUNT SINGLES: Bunting for base hits was an important facet of Negro League Baseball. Some players are given special ratings – if indicated, for all results including double-1 (1-1-x), and also in some cases double-2 (2-2-x), if the final play result is a single (to the outfield), it is instead a bunt single, all runners advance one base.

FIELDING: Negro League fielders were charged with considerably more errors than the Major League average. To increase the number of errors, you can change the following play readings in the FIELDER column:

1-3-3 Outfield DRAMA!

2-3-5 Infield DRAMA! ☒

2-4-4 GO to pull field (2B/SS)

2-6-6 FO to pull field (LF/RF)

If you believe, as some research suggests, that Negro League fielders were as accomplished as their Major League counterparts, and that the increased errors were due more to low-quality fields and official scoring standards of the day, ignore those changes. You can also maintain the same fielding ratings if playing Negro League vs. Major League teams – the results should be satisfactory.

NIGHT GAMES: Major League Baseball was still two years away from night baseball, but the Negro Leagues had discovered it. With their portable lighting system, the Kansas City Monarchs (and the House of David) brought night games across North America. In addition, Greenlee Field in Pittsburgh had lights added for 1933. However, the lights were certainly rudimentary at best – especially with the generator-run portable system. To simulate those effects, for all night games:

- ALL pitchers are FLASH (FLASH pitchers can be DB FLASH)
- Any roll including double-1 or double-2 (so, 1-1-x, 2-2-x); where the final result is a POP OUT or FLY OUT, roll DECIDER die
 - if BULLET, ball lost above lights, single for batter, all runners advance 1 base (2 bases if 2 out).

UMPIRING: Umpires in the Negro Leagues were notorious, according to the newspaper accounts of the day. Often, the umpires were hired by the home team – and their calls went accordingly. No individual umpires are included given lack of information, but before each game, roll on the following chart for each umpire (one behind the plate, one on the bases):

- 1-2 All calls in HOME TEAM "favor", umpire is ●RESPECTED, ●LENIENT.
All calls in VISITING TEAM "favor", umpire is ●QUESTIONABLE, ●STRICT
- 3 Umpire is QUESTIONABLE
- 4 Umpire is ●QUESTIONABLE
- 5 Umpire is ●QUESTIONABLE, ●STRICT
- 6 Umpire is ●QUESTIONABLE, ●LENIENT

1933 EAST-WEST ALL-STAR GAME

1933 saw the first East-West All-Star Game, Negro League baseball's showcase, played where the first white major league all-star game just two months earlier. Held at Comiskey Park in Chicago, the teams were chosen through voting in the two leading black newspapers, the Pittsburgh Courier and Chicago Defender. As a result, the teams were heavily dominated by players from the Pittsburgh Crawfords and the Chicago American Giants.

Played in a steady drizzle, the West stars defeated the East 11-7, thanks in part to a home run by Mule Suttles. Willie Foster pitched a complete-game victory for the West.
