

2023 Second Season Express Pro Playoff Set

Design Notes, John Bowen

This is my second venture at rating teams using Plaay Games “How To” guide. My previous project was to rate the two teams for this year’s Army/Navy game. A key point to remember with these charts are that you will not be able to use them for the full Second Season game unless you go and calculate the R ratings for all RB & WR/TE as well as the kick and punt return ratings for the specialists. You would also need to fill in complete depth charts as these charts only have backups listed in the “finder columns” for run and pass distribution. Below are a few design tips that will enhance the realism of your 2023 Playoff re/pre play.

Team Defense Y Adjustments:

These are listed to the immediate right of the team’s name in the center of the chart. Simply add or subtract from the opposing starting QB’s Y rating to get his Y rating for the game.

Team Run/Pass for Solo Play Calls:

The (Run: ##) to the right of the Y adjustment (Center of chart) is designed to be used with a 2d10/percentile die roll. Simply roll 2d10 to determine the offensive play call for that sequence. For example, SF has a run rating of 50. A roll of 01-50 would be a run sequence. Rolls of 51-100 would be a pass sequence. Treat 00 as 100. With this simple addition, you will see Kansas City “air at out” at their 60% rate while Baltimore and SF will pound it out in the ground game to the tune of 52 and 50% respectively.

RB Usage & Inside vs. Outside Designation:

I highly suggest not calling your RB carries and inside/outside designation. The backs will perform better with a random distribution of inside vs. outside carries. A simple 1d6 with even =inside and odd=outside will work when making your 2d10 sequence call. Example: White 4 with 2d10 roll of 50 for the 49ers would be a inside run. A white 3 with the same 2d10 roll would be an outside run. Use the d20 for the actual RB as usual on locators. For “Backfield” and “WR/TE” ratings checks, consider ED in both groupings.

Sack Locators use 11-66 roll:

To track sacks, it will require a 11-66 style roll.

Pittsburgh QB Situation is Unique:

I had to take a few creative liberties here. For example, you will note that their run locators say “Pittsburgh QB” instead of a particular player like everyone else. This is due to the similarity of all the Pittsburgh QBs rushing stats and the facts that they used 3 QB each a fair amount of the season. I also used the PIT Team Interception % to derive the starting QB’s ‘Y’ rating.

San Francisco Pass Offense:

19 points for the passing platoon was a challenge to allocate. It will be interesting to see how they perform in people’s replays.

Not Every Ball Carrier or Receiver is Listed on the Locators

I just rated the top 3-4 (sometimes 5) ball carriers for the run locators. For the receiving targets, I tried to list anyone that caught at least 14-17 passes. Any WR that caught less will not be listed unless his team had very few completed passes overall.

I hope you enjoy these charts as much as I did in making them. Enjoy the PLAAY-offs!
